As you are enjoying the warmth in winter, it is also the time to bring some chill factor inside your home. Home is where one spends some quality time with family members. Instead of using electronic devices like room heaters one can refresh one's interiors to feel the difference. Arrange your furniture in such a way so as to ensure the maximum space inside your home. You can work on the colour in your home. Lakshmi Chand Singh, founding partner, Homes by Design, says, "With winter showing all its strength, let's create a visual change in our homes by bringing in novel – trendy décor ideas!" Singh outlines some basic elements that may produce some warmth inside your home. New Nordic: Combining the minimalist furniture with textured upholstery. With

are coming up in a big way this season and people are exerting their freedom of choice to suit their individual tastes. Neutral colours such as white, light-green, beige, and grey add a sense of calm and balance to spaces, and attract light filling up the space with winter sun.

Pantone Colour Living Coral, is going to be very exciting for the design industry and can be used in combination with other tones to obtain all sorts of inspiring results. The colour, Living Coral will stand out and become the focal point of an otherwise neutral room decor. A stylish strategy can be enabled by adopting coral accent pillows that are casually set on the bed, on the sofa, matching curtains, area rugs and other accessories in the room.

Art – Deco While a balanced home décor theme obeys certain rules, art offers the opportunity to turn this whole splendour. A great print can introduce a theme to a room, creating a unique look and ambience. Anika Mittal Dhawan, founder and director, Mold Design Studio, says, "Trending now is the use of metals, whether it is artwork, installations, paints, furniture, lighting or even hardware. Bronze, brass, rose gold and copper have been particularly dominating in combination with wood, marble or glass. Copper is a soft, malleable, and ductile metal." One can maximise the winter aesthetic with an interior re-furnishing, while preparing for the chillier months with a warming makeover. Ritu Goregaokar, design director, GA design, says, "Winter is about comfort and warmth and curling up on the sofa with a great book or a cup of tea. When we think about winter the colour that quickly comes to mind is autumn maple. One of the colour trends this season which will introduce warmth into the palette."

Display what you love A very liberating trend this winter is the curated look. What something costs is irrelevant. Whimsy and quirkiness are a plus. This extends from accessories to furniture. Instead of the idea that all interior spaces have to match, let's take a more creative and unique approach to interiors.

Shapes in furniture Asymmetry is having a strong moment. If you're looking to update any furniture in your living room, family room or bedroom, think curves and rounded shapes.

the winter temperatures dropping to a new low, this trend is here to stay. This is essentially an understated look that creates a big impact. The use of minimalist furniture design can be defined by a subtle understatement of form and supported by an emphasis on function and aesthetic appeal. Layer up these furniture pieces with textured upholstery and materials to create depths and make the space warm and cosy.

Neutral Colours Traditionally, people have opted for bright colours to enhance interior spaces. However, neutral colours around with panache. Artwork – paintings, sculptures, installations – helps people personalise their spaces. For this particular trend, use minimalist lighting and furniture piece that ooze a touch of decadence. This trend is sure to bring back that cocktail hour back in a big way, thanks to the statement bar and drinks trolley being the prominent furniture piece.

Go Big on Prints Patterns and prints have been making their way to our hearts and our homes for a couple of years now, but it is finally in 2019, that will get to see them in their
